

Public Ledger Building, No. 10 West Third Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Subscription - IN ADVANCE

One Year, $1.00
Six Months, .60
Three Months, .35
Per Month, .10
Delivered by Carrier, 50 Cents
Payable to Order at Post Office

LET ME FORGET!

Over 9,000 Democratic Precinct Election Boards, 119 Democratic County Election Boards, and a solid Democratic State Election Board—every one the creation of Mr. Goebel. An agent—certified to the following vote cast at the election held in Kentucky on Tuesday, November 15, 1900.

William S. Taylor.....193,714
William Goebel.....191,331
Taylor's Plurality.....2,383

The Goebel Law is the most fitting monument that GOEBEL could have.

The repeal of the Goebel Law by the men who have become its beneficiaries is a wanton insult to the memory of GOEBEL.

If it has taken our Catholic friends of the entire world 608 years to convert 1,000,000 Chinamen, how much did the Editor of The Bulletin subscribe to the Home Mission School in this city?

The Demo-populists complain because the Chemical Trust, as they allege, has advanced the price of ice. Don't see how that need affect any one; a reading of the so-called Democratic platform will have the same effect.

According to the statistics for 1900, the American Board of Foreign Missions, organized in 1810, now has in all "heathen" lands nearly 500 Churches, and during the 90 years of its existence it has received about 100,000 members. The cost has been $27,000,000. Here's a chance for some real Foreign Missionary Editor to figure out how long it will take, at the above rate, to make Goebel Democrats out of the remaining 299,870,000 Chinamen, and how much of the $100,000,000 Reserve Fund will be left after Fox & GOEBEL draws his claws out of the grab-bag.

The LEMMER Editor is everlastingly after the Preachers for meddling with secular affairs. He does not hesitate, however, to meddle with religious affairs. What he doesn't know about Missions would fill a great big book, if printed.—Bulletin.

The Editor of THE LEMMER, unlike his contemporary, doesn't know everything; and, unlike his contemporary again, he doesn't array himself against those who do know what he doesn't know. He has common-sense ideas about some things, and besides he is willing to learn. If the Editor of The Bulletin will cast his religious eye over the diagram and figures that appear in another place in this paper, he may learn enough about Foreign Missions to fill a small book at least.

A MAN who rarely ever enters a Church is not very well qualified to discuss Foreign Missions or any other religious topic.—Bulletin.

Well, that's a "crusher"—a regular rock crusher, in fact. Who the devil is the man after anyway? Who is it, in all this broad land, that has the audacity to discuss Foreign Missions, or any other religious subject, unless he sits on the front bench at Church, and wears a sanctimonious face on Sunday and a Cokeristic smile the balance of the week?

Hereafter let no one dare to speak of what is done by the Kentucky Legislature unless he attends the meetings of that body; let no scribbler hereafter open his ink-wells on Congress unless he occupies a pew in that religious gathering.

History, recorded in tomes musty with the centuries, cold facts and figures born of experience—these things go for naught. According to Editor MARSH the only commission that authorizes one to speak of Foreign Missions is attendance upon Church!

And yet one is amazed at the increase of crime!

Houseburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, houseburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the diet has been weak and constipated. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Maintain the food thoroughly. Let the hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be relieved. For sale by J. W. Wood & Son, Dayton, Ohio.

The Sunday-school of the Christian Church is picnicking today in Best's woods.

Those who live on farms are especially liable to many accidental cuts, burns and bruises. A few drops of Chamberlain's Pain-Expeller will make healthy kidneys and pure blood. Nothing else "just as good." J. W. Wood & Son and Armstrong & Co.

Chickasaw Park has been selected as the camping ground for volunteer soldiers on their return from Cuba and the foreign territories.

The blood is strained and purified by the kidneys. No hope for health while the kidneys are wrong. Foley's Kidney Cure will make healthy kidneys and pure blood. Nothing else "just as good." J. W. Wood & Son and Armstrong & Co.

Mr. George W. Locher, the civil engineer, who has made Mayville his headquarters a few months, left yesterday to engage in business at Cincinnati.

Herbals clear the complexion, give buoyancy to the mind, cure headache, regulate the stomach and bowels, stimulate the liver, and is, in fact, a perfect guardian of the health. Price, 50 cents. J. W. Wood & Son.

Mr. J. M. Scott has resigned as Superintendent of the Mayville Cotton Mills. He will take a much needed rest this summer before taking up new work in the fall.

Many women suffer all sorts of so-called "female weaknesses" simply because their kidneys are out of order and they have a hard time of it. Foley's Kidney Cure is just what is needed by most ailing women. J. W. Wood & Son and Armstrong & Co.

Women's Rights.

On July 10 to 13 inclusive the C. and O. will sell round trip tickets, Mayville to Cincinnati, at rate of one fare. Return limit July 15. Round trip tickets for children, between the age of five and twelve, 50 cents.

CHRONIC KICKERS.

Some in Every Household in Mayville, But They Are Growing Less.

Chronic kickers the kidneys are—when they're sick. The back aches, because the kidneys are blocked—this the kidneys kicking.

Help the kidneys with their work. The back will ache no more. Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

It's the best of proof, for it comes from Mayville.

Mr. W. H. Campbell of 400 West Third street says:

"Doan's Kidney Pills, sold at J. W. Wood & Son's Drugstore, corner West Second and Market streets, proved to be a wonderfully effective remedy for relieving and curing kidney troubles. It is a great boon to people on the down grade of life to know of a remedy which has such soothing and healing powers. It should be known to every person of advanced age."

For sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Buffalo, N. Y., Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—DOAN'S—and take no substitute.

THE MOST EXCITING CAMPAIGN IN 33 YEARS IS NOW ON.

Everyone must have a Daily Paper.

The Campaign Offer of $1.00

From Now to Nov. 15 made by

THE LOUISVILLE EVENING POST.

BY MAIL ONLY.

The only unbiased and impartial daily in the South.

REGULAR RATES—One month, $1.00; Three months, $2.50; Six months, $4.00; Twelve months, $7.00.

Send for Sample Copies.

THE EVENING POST, Louisville, Ky.

THE LEMMER Editor is everlastingly after the Preachers for meddling with secular affairs. He does not hesitate, however, to meddle with religious affairs. What he doesn't know about Missions would fill a great big book, if printed.—Bulletin.

The Editor of THE LEMMER, unlike his contemporary, doesn't know everything; and, unlike his contemporary again, he doesn't array himself against those who do know what he doesn't know. He has common-sense ideas about some things, and besides he is willing to learn. If the Editor of The Bulletin will cast his religious eye over the diagram and figures that appear in another place in this paper, he may learn enough about Foreign Missions to fill a small book at least.

A MAN who rarely ever enters a Church is not very well qualified to discuss Foreign Missions or any other religious topic.—Bulletin.

Well, that's a "crusher"—a regular rock crusher, in fact. Who the devil is the man after anyway? Who is it, in all this broad land, that has the audacity to discuss Foreign Missions, or any other religious subject, unless he sits on the front bench at Church, and wears a sanctimonious face on Sunday and a Cokeristic smile the balance of the week?

Hereafter let no one dare to speak of what is done by the Kentucky Legislature unless he attends the meetings of that body; let no scribbler hereafter open his ink-wells on Congress unless he occupies a pew in that religious gathering.

History, recorded in tomes musty with the centuries, cold facts and figures born of experience—these things go for naught. According to Editor MARSH the only commission that authorizes one to speak of Foreign Missions is attendance upon Church!

And yet one is amazed at the increase of crime!

Any advertiser is authorized to insert his name in the columns of this paper, and to receive the same at the rate of 10 cents per line.

RAILWAY MATTERS.

TWO EXCURSIONS TO CINCINNATI SUNDAY VIA C. AND O. RAILROAD.

On Sunday, July 15th, the C. and O. will run two excursion trains to Cincinnati, fare for the round trip Mayville to Cincinnati $1. Trains will leave Mayville at 4 a. m. and 8:30 a. m., returning, leave Cincinnati at 10 p. m. Sunday, St. Louis via Cincinnati on that date.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION, LEXINGTON. On above account the L. and N. Railroad will sell round-trip tickets to Lexington July 15th and for morning train July 16th at $2.75, return limit July 21st.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION, LOUISVILLE. On above account the L. and N. Railroad will sell round-trip tickets to Louisville for morning train July 15th and 10 p. m. Sunday, return limit July 21st.

CHEAP RATE TO CINCINNATI. On July 10 to 13 inclusive the C. and O. will sell round trip tickets, Mayville to Cincinnati, at rate of one fare. Return limit July 15. Round trip tickets for children, between the age of five and twelve, 50 cents.

CHRONIC KICKERS.

Some in Every Household in Mayville, But They Are Growing Less.

Chronic kickers the kidneys are—when they're sick. The back aches, because the kidneys are blocked—this the kidneys kicking.

Help the kidneys with their work. The back will ache no more. Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

It's the best of proof, for it comes from Mayville.

Mr. W. H. Campbell of 400 West Third street says:

"Doan's Kidney Pills, sold at J. W. Wood & Son's Drugstore, corner West Second and Market streets, proved to be a wonderfully effective remedy for relieving and curing kidney troubles. It is a great boon to people on the down grade of life to know of a remedy which has such soothing and healing powers. It should be known to every person of advanced age."

For sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Buffalo, N. Y., Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—DOAN'S—and take no substitute.

THE MOST EXCITING CAMPAIGN IN 33 YEARS IS NOW ON.

Everyone must have a Daily Paper.

The Campaign Offer of $1.00

From Now to Nov. 15 made by

THE LOUISVILLE EVENING POST.

BY MAIL ONLY.

The only unbiased and impartial daily in the South.

REGULAR RATES—One month, $1.00; Three months, $2.50; Six months, $4.00; Twelve months, $7.00.

Send for Sample Copies.

THE EVENING POST, Louisville, Ky.

THE LEMMER Editor is everlastingly after the Preachers for meddling with secular affairs. He does not hesitate, however, to meddle with religious affairs. What he doesn't know about Missions would fill a great big book, if printed.—Bulletin.

The Editor of THE LEMMER, unlike his contemporary, doesn't know everything; and, unlike his contemporary again, he doesn't array himself against those who do know what he doesn't know. He has common-sense ideas about some things, and besides he is willing to learn. If the Editor of The Bulletin will cast his religious eye over the diagram and figures that appear in another place in this paper, he may learn enough about Foreign Missions to fill a small book at least.

A MAN who rarely ever enters a Church is not very well qualified to discuss Foreign Missions or any other religious topic.—Bulletin.

Well, that's a "crusher"—a regular rock crusher, in fact. Who the devil is the man after anyway? Who is it, in all this broad land, that has the audacity to discuss Foreign Missions, or any other religious subject, unless he sits on the front bench at Church, and wears a sanctimonious face on Sunday and a Cokeristic smile the balance of the week?

Hereafter let no one dare to speak of what is done by the Kentucky Legislature unless he attends the meetings of that body; let no scribbler hereafter open his ink-wells on Congress unless he occupies a pew in that religious gathering.

History, recorded in tomes musty with the centuries, cold facts and figures born of experience—these things go for naught. According to Editor MARSH the only commission that authorizes one to speak of Foreign Missions is attendance upon Church!

And yet one is amazed at the increase of crime!

Houseburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, houseburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the diet has been weak and constipated. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Maintain the food thoroughly. Let the hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be relieved. For sale by J. W. Wood & Son, Dayton, Ohio.

THE LEMMER Editor is everlastingly after the Preachers for meddling with secular affairs. He does not hesitate, however, to meddle with religious affairs. What he doesn't know about Missions would fill a great big book, if printed.—Bulletin.

The Editor of THE LEMMER, unlike his contemporary, doesn't know everything; and, unlike his contemporary again, he doesn't array himself against those who do know what he doesn't know. He has common-sense ideas about some things, and besides he is willing to learn. If the Editor of The Bulletin will cast his religious eye over the diagram and figures that appear in another place in this paper, he may learn enough about Foreign Missions to fill a small book at least.

NEWS IN KENTUCKY.

KENTUCKY COAL.

Operators Meeting Many Inquiries as to the Prospects of the Seasoners in the South.

Corbin, Ky., July 10.—Coal operators in the section are in receipt of many communications from consumers of steam coal in Alabama, Mississippi and other southern sections, desiring to know prices on coal delivered. These inquiries are the result of a strike which now seems imminent in the southwestern mining districts.

The miners in the Alabama and other coal districts of the south and southwest have demanded an increase in the present wage scale, which from present prospects, will not be granted.

Operators in Kentucky and East Tennessee are very much elated at the prospect of securing a large output, as it means thousands of dollars to them. In the event of a strike in the southern coal regions they say they fear there will be no trouble in securing a greater part of the patronage of the southern people, and it is secured they maintain that it will stay with them. If such a result should occur eastern Kentucky coal fields will outstrip those of West Virginia.

KENTUCKY REPUBLICANS.

Leaders of the Party Decided to Have a "Hurrah" Campaign, Beginning July 17.

Louisville, Ky., July 10.—Republican leaders from all over Kentucky and several anti-Goebel democrats held a conference here and decided, in their efforts to have a "hurrah" campaign in Kentucky this year, beginning July 17, running special trains from all over the state to Louisville on July 17, when the state convention will be held here.

Informally the conference decided that anti-Goebel democrats should be invited to have a "hurrah" campaign in Kentucky this year, beginning July 17, when the state convention will be held here.

Tobacco Growers Bring Suit. Louisville, Ky., July 10.—Nine suits have been filed by tobacco growers against Louisville warehouses. The shippers claim that under the rules of the Louisville Tobacco exchange warehouses have been settling with growers after deducting ten pounds of tobacco from each hogged for a sample. It is claimed that under the McLean law the shippers are entitled to pay for the ten pounds. The aggregate claimed in the suits filed aggregated $6,000.

Louisville to Have Horse Shows. Louisville, Ky., July 10.—The Louisville Horse Show association was organized with 100 members and a paid capital stock of $10,000. The association will give annual horse shows in Louisville, the first one during the second week of October in the building erected for the Confederate reunion. Gen. John B. Castleman is president and Brent Altschuler secretary of the association.

Attorneys Undecided. Georgetown, Ky., July 10.—The trial of the men accused of Goebel's assassination, which was brought here on a change of venue from Frankfort, was called in court, but the attorneys for the defense were unable to decide whether to go to trial or ask a continuance, and another day time was granted them to reach some agreement.

Murder Over Turkey. Harrodsburg, Ky., July 10.—Forrest Alford shot and killed Wm. Overstreet at Mayo, this county. There has been trouble between the two men since last fall, when, it is alleged, Overstreet killed some of Alford's turkeys. Both men are well-known farmers. It is said Overstreet was advancing upon Alford with an open knife when Alford fired.

Crushed Under a Tank. Carlisle, Ky., July 10.—John R. Collins, near headquarters, this county, while hauling water for a thrasher, was horribly mangled. The wagon was overturned and the water tank rolled upon him, crushing his legs and hips into a shapeless mass and breaking his arms. He is still alive, but will die.

At Poisoned Man. Ashland, Ky., July 10.—The family of John Oak, living near here, are in a dangerous condition from the effects of eating poisoned ham. Wesley Crawford and a family of eight are just recovering from an experience of the same kind. Doctors have been summoned.

Second Attempt at Suicide. Ashland, Ky., July 10.—George Morgan, son of Capt. J. P. Morgan, of fronton, attempted suicide by jumping from a creek bridge. He jumped 60 feet. The cause of his act is not known. This is his second attempt within a year. He is not expected to live.

Regulation Made. Frankfort, Ky., July 10.—Gov. Beekins made a regulation on the governor of Illinois for the return to Louisville of Luther Bailey, who stands charged with the murder of Worthington Barrett. Bailey has been located in Chicago.

Noted Race Farm Changes Hands. Lexington, July 10.—Ex-Senate Senator C. C. Brenston has purchased Kingston station farm, owned by Mrs. B. Ferguson, wife of the famous starrer who is ill here, for $300,000 cash. It is one of the most noted race farms in Kentucky.

News, news, news! It's enough to give a man the blues. Nobody married and nobody died; nobody broken an arm or a head; nobody came in to talk of the "crash"; no one got booby and started a scrap; no one got run in for taking a hobby; nobody buried and nobody born. Oh, for a racket, a riot, a fuss! Someone to come in and kick up a fuss, someone to stir up the peace-laden air; somebody's comment to give us a scare. Somebody thumped within an inch of his life, somebody ran off with another man's wife; someone come in and pay up their dues; anything, anything, just so it's news.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

On and after July 1st, 1900, City Taxes will be in my hands for collection.

J. W. FITZGERALD, City Treasurer.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

On and after July 1st, 1900, City Taxes will be in my hands for collection.

J. W. FITZGERALD, City Treasurer.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

On and after July 1st, 1900, City Taxes will be in my hands for collection.

J. W. FITZGERALD, City Treasurer.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

On and after July 1st, 1900, City Taxes will be in my hands for collection.

J. W. FITZGERALD, City Treasurer.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

On and after July 1st, 1900, City Taxes will be in my hands for collection.

J. W. FITZGERALD, City Treasurer.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

On and after July 1st, 1900, City Taxes will be in my hands for collection.

J. W. FITZGERALD, City Treasurer.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

On and after July 1st, 1900, City Taxes will be in my hands for collection.

J. W. FITZGERALD, City Treasurer.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

On and after July 1st, 1900, City Taxes will be in my hands for collection.

J. W. FITZGERALD, City Treasurer.

1900

1900

City Taxes!

WANTED, HORSES!

In exchange for Singer Sewing Machine.

Will pay for Singer Sewing Machine, or apply to Singer Sewing Machine Co., or apply to THOMAS A. BRADLEY, General Manager.

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

STORE

OFFICERS KILLED.

Lord Roberts Reports the Deaths of Captain Currie and Lieutenant Kirk.

A SERGEANT AND THREE TROOPERS

A Squadron of the Imperial Horse encounters a Superior Force of the Enemy.

Gen. Hutton's Division Attacked by a Large Number of Boers, but Were Quickly Driven Off by Artillery.

London, July 10.—Lord Roberts telegraphs to the war office from Pretoria as follows: "The officer commanding at Helibron reports that State Secretary Bignault, State Attorney Dickson and members of the Council Vastander and Kuppervergen came in and surrendered. "Hutton was attacked Sunday in a position he was holding by a large number of Boers. He cut them off without much difficulty, the five-killings with him being found most useful. Our only casualty was Lieut. Young, of the first Canadian mounted troops, slightly scalp wound. The enemy left several wounded on the ground and sent a flag of truce with a request that they might be received in our field hospital.

I regret to say that Capt. Currie and Lieut. Kirk, of the Imperial light horse, who were reported wounded in my last telegram, were both killed. One squadron of this distinguished corps pressed a very superior force of the enemy in a gallant attempt to carry off a wounded comrade, to which they attributed the heavy loss sustained. In addition to the officers, a farrier sergeant and three troopers were killed, and the sergeant major, three sergeants and seven troopers wounded.

As Lord Roberts' dispatches reveal, the Boers are unusually active both in the Orange colony and the so-called pacified Western Transvaal, but without producing any serious impression upon the British army.

Passengers arriving at Lourenco Marques on July 9 from Middleburg say there has been severe fighting between the latter place and Machodopo, in which the Boers were defeated and demoralized.

The Lourenco Marques correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says, under date of July 9: "I understand that Mr. Hollis, the American consul here, has been recalled. He is a well-known pro-Boer."

BRINGING TROOPS FROM CUBA.

Several Transports Have Been Ordered to Perform That Duty at Once.

Washington, July 10.—Quartermaster General Ludington has practically completed arrangements to bring the 1st and 2nd regiments of the 10th Infantry to Cuba for service in this country. The transport Inawaka, which has just left New York, will unload freight at Havana and then go to Matanzas, where it will take a battalion of the 10th Infantry to Santiago, unloading that battalion there and loading a battalion of the 10th Infantry which will bring to New York.

The transport Sedgewick will leave New York for Matanzas, whence she will transfer the 2nd Infantry to Santiago to reinforce and load two battalions of the 2d Infantry for New York. The Crook and McClellan, also New York, will bring back two battalions of the 8th Infantry, which battalions will be forwarded to Ft. Snelling, Minn. The transport McPherson concludes her present duty of taking Cuban teachers to Boston and will proceed to Santiago for the remainder of the 5th Infantry, which will be landed at New York.

Murdered for Revenge.

Anoka, Minn., July 10.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of James Hardy, Elmer Miller and William Mattison on the charge of having murdered Mr. William Wise and his son William on May 27 and of tally wounding William Wise, sr., and his son Joe. According to the confession of Mattison, Hardy and Miller were lovers of the Wise girls, and had forbidden the house by the girl's father, and the shooting was done for revenge.

Shot Her Assassin.

Little Rock, Ark., July 10.—Near Falcon, Columbia county, La. Watson was shot and killed by Mrs. James Henry. Watson went to the Henry home and, it is alleged by Mrs. Henry, attempted to assault her. She seized a double-barreled shotgun and emptied both barrels at Watson, killing him almost instantly. Mrs. Henry was arrested and jailed on a charge of murder.

Family of Nine Persons Poisoned.

Little Rock, Ark., July 10.—News reached here that the entire family of W. J. Fink, consisting of nine persons, had died near Calico Rock, Marion county, from eating poisonous foodstuffs supposed to be mushrooms. All were taken violently ill and none recovered.

The Late Vice President's Wealth.

New York, July 10.—The inventory of the personal estate of the late Vice President Charles A. Hoar was filed with the surrogate at Paterson, N. J. It appraises the late vice president's wealth at $9,028,441.

SHOT NIAGARA FALLS.

Peter Nissen, of Chicago, Successfully Makes His Perilous Trip as Frontiersman.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 10.—Peter Nissen, of Chicago, or Mr. Bowser, as he styles himself, went through the whirlpool rapids of the Niagara river in the presence of about 10,000 persons. In his craft, the Fool Killer, he started from a launch at 3:37, but the little eddies kept the Fool Killer drifting about until 4:50, when she got into the whirlpool current. Passing under the cantilever bridge, the boat took on the speed of an express train. Lower threw his oar far from him and waved his cap. The crowd saw the craft rise on the crest of a smooth wave and then dive into the leaping spray and disappear. The strange current turned over and over, toppling and plunging until it passed a bend in the river, and the most perilous part of the journey had been completed. The boat, carrying 11 persons, kept on the crest of the waves until submerged again on the verge of the whirlpool. Shooting into the whirlpool, the Fool Killer swung around and went down like a fishing bob, but rose again quickly.

For the next 55 minutes Bowser and his boat circled around the whirlpool. Shortly before 6 o'clock the Fool Killer was carried out to the edge of the rapids, and a line was thrown by a dower to some men on shore, who hauled it in. His first question was: "How is that for Bowser?"

Bowser warned himself at a first jump on the shore and put on dry clothing and appeared to be little the worse for his mad ride.

"I had no idea how bad the whirlpool rapids were, I would never have attempted that trip," he said. "After I had passed through the first big waves, I found that my hat had been washed off. Then some more waves came over me and I did not know where I was. I did not know what was going on until I came out in the whirlpool. During that brief time it seemed that a hundred hammers were pounding my head and my heart. I was nearly killed, but we were on our side or end several times, and each time I thought that I was a goner. If it had not been for the shoulder straps which I put on at the last minute I would have been hurled to death. I was conscious of nothing except the fearful sensation of being overwhelmed with hot water. I was on my side, I was nearly dead and tired when I came out at the whirlpool. Three or four times my breath was nearly gone, and then I was washed open and I would get a breath of air. I could not use my steering apparatus. When I got into the rapids the water took complete control of the boat, and I simply clung on and tried to keep my breath in my body." The Fool Killer is 20 feet long and four feet deep and is made of a heavy birch pine, with four air-tight compartments. The keel weighs 1,250 pounds.

Something About "Bowser."

Chicago, July 10.—"P. M. Bowser" is the full-shooting alias assumed by Peter Nissen, who rode the Niagara rapids in his craft, the Fool Killer, on Sunday. Nissen is a Dane, 37 years of age, and until recently had been a bookkeeper for Frederick Rogers, 125 North La Salle street. He has been a resident of Chicago for 17 years. Nissen's boat was finished in this city last May.

STRIKE ON AGAIN.

The Boycott Against the St. Louis Traction Company Has Been Renewed.

St. Louis, July 10.—The strike against the St. Louis Transit Co. by its former employees, which was declared off on July 2, was ordered renewed at a meeting of the Street Railway Men's union at the West End Coliseum. When the strike was settled on July 2 there were some mutterings about the settlement, and after the terms of settlement, and since that time the dissatisfaction has grown steadily. Charges were made that the company had failed to keep the agreement of July 2, and a demand for more lenient terms was cited tending to prove that there had been a breach of faith.

Meetings were held at several places in the course of the week, and committees were appointed to procure proof of infidelity on the part of the company. At a meeting of the executive committee of the railway men's union, held on Saturday, a batch of affidavits were taken to the effect that new men have been employed by the company since July 2 in violation of the terms of the agreement of that date. The men were taken to the company and had been intentionally violated the agreement of July 2 and declared a violation of the agreement to every condition of settlement, both in letter and spirit. Fred W. Lehmann, attorney for the company, appeared at the meeting and was asked to answer the question as to whether the company had broken faith to Joseph W. Cook, counsel for the men, and bound the company to the terms of the judgment in the premises. The proposition was ignored, and by a unanimous vote the strike was renewed.

BOXERS BEATEN.

More Hope That the Foreigners in Peking May Be Yet Alive and Well.

A DISPATCH FROM LI HUNG CHANG

His Advice Do Not Confirm the Reported Massacre of all the Foreigners in Peking.

The Fighting There Has Been Between the Boxers and the Loyal Troops, in Which the Latter Were Victorious.

Berlin, July 10.—Li Hui Hsuan, the Chinese minister to Germany, received a dispatch from Li Hung Chang July 7, saying: "No authentic confirmation has arrived of the Peking slaughter, but I have reliable information that Prince Ching has organized a detachment opposing the Boxers, fighting them with regular troops, a majority of which remain loyal. Several severe encounters have been fought in which the loyal troops were victorious. Three thousand rebels have been killed in the streets before the gates of Peking."

The German government fears the spread of the trouble.

MORE HOPEFUL OUTLOOK.

The Foreigners in Peking Are Probably Safe, but a Civil War Prevails.

London, July 10.—With the foreigners in Peking probably safe amid civil war, with Prince Ching on their side, with the powers united and the forces constantly increasing, the outlook in China is now rather more hopeful than it has been for a month.

THE WALL AND MOAT OF THE CITY OF TIEN-TSIN.

It appears from the cautious statement given out by Tsiang Sheng, the Chinese minister to Germany, that the heavy guns bearing on the legations at Peking were not used by Prince Ching, who is served by loyal troops, but by the army of the north. Sheng likewise intimates that Yang Lu, commander-in-chief of the northern army, is associated with the Boxers. The Boxers, however, are the ferocious designs and dictatorial ambition. Sheng, who appears to be the sole Shanghai conduit of Peking news, claims the foreign consuls, but takes excessive precautions to prevent the Chinese from thinking him friendly to the foreigners.

The feeling of unrest in the southern and central provinces continues. The members of the official classes in those provinces strive to remain neutral, with a leaning toward the foreigners, until they shall see whether the moderate or extreme factions will win. Prince Ching seems to be standing for the dynasty and the old order against Prince Tuan's inordinate ambition.

Prince Tuan's viewpoint the capture of Peking is the key to the situation, as there is a fear, according to the Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent, that delay now means 100 recruits for the Boxers for every soldier of the allies in the land.

Two couriers arrived at Tien-Tsin on July 1 from Peking. One brought a letter from Sir Claude MacDonald, the British minister, to the same effect as that previously received from Sir Robert Hart. The courier confirms the reports of the death of Baron Kettler. They say that Prince Ching is doing his utmost to protect the foreigners, but that the natives feeling against the whites is strong. Two high officials opposed to the Boxers are reported by the couriers to have been assassinated. Sir Claude MacDonald's letter is dated four days earlier than that of Sir Robert Hart. A dispatch to a news agency here, dated Tien-Tsin, July 2, says: "The emperor dangles, so far from being dead, is actively striving to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite willing that Ching should be decapitated, but the emperor wishes to prevent the factions fighting. Prince Ching has informed her that he would rather lose his head than be constantly obliged to warn her of the consequences of the prolongation of the present anarchy. Prince Tuan is quite

